“DANGEROUS OVERREACH”: Australian Lobby Group Condemns Prime Minister Albanese's New Censorship Laws as Assault on Free Speech

Canberra, Australia – January 12, 2026 – The Australian Lobby Group today issued a strong condemnation of the new censorship laws announced by Prime Minister Anthony Albanese, labelling them a dangerous overreach that threatens the fundamental rights of Australians to express themselves freely and access uncensored information.

"Australians deserve a government that protects freedoms, not one that silences them" said a spokesperson for the Australian Lobby Group. "Prime Minister Albanese's censorship push is nothing short of an attack on the very essence of free speech. It's designed to control narratives, suppress opposition, and consolidate power in the hands of bureaucrats who decide what we can say, see, and share. We will not stand idly by while our liberties are dismantled under the guise of 'safety' or 'protection!'"

The Australian Lobby Group advocates for policies that promote transparency, individual rights, and limited government intervention in personal and digital freedoms. These new laws, if passed, would set a chilling precedent, potentially leading to widespread self-censorship and the marginalization of alternative viewpoints. History shows that such measures rarely stop at their intended targets and often expand to curtail broader civil liberties.

We urge all Australians who value free expression to join the fight against this oppressive agenda. The time to act is now—before it's too late.
